

The International Oak Society is a nonprofit organization dedicated to encouraging the study and cultivation of oaks (genus Quercus). Begun in 1985 to facilitate seed exchange, the Society has grown into a worldwide group bringing together oak lovers from nearly 30 countries on six continents. Being a member you will:

- receive a yearly membership directory, an invaluable network of contacts
- receive International Oaks (journal) and Oak News and Notes (newsletter)
- receive special offers on books, publications and oak-related items
- be able to participate in the triennial conferences and unique seed exchange
- be able to participate in many oak-related events all over the world such as the Oak Open Days and others
- have open access to the IOS website
